“Since safety and concern for our neighbors is of the utmost importance, Jon and I have not knocked on your doors during this campaign. But that doesn’t mean we don’t want to interact with you,” Chadda said. “This pandemic has impacted us all and with our small gatherings and virtual town halls, we've found very creative ways to interact with residents. It's not ideal, but it's exciting."

Sandler concurs. "As much as we would like to ring doorbells to chat with residents, safety and caution is paramount. We've had some great online and in-person meetings and look forward to our October events. But make no mistake; our decision to not knock on doors is strictly out of respect for your health. Sophia and I look forward to having you join us at Pleasant Valley Park and online."
